The Solar LED Brick from Zeta is an off grid LED solution that produces effective, pleasing, outdoor wayfinding illumination without the need for extensive digging and cabling.

Ideal for a number of uses, including pathways and exterior wall lighting, the Solar LED Brick is waterproof, as well as shock and pressure resistant. This makes it an equally perfect solution for driveways as it can withstand the weight of a motorbike, car or van.

The product is available in full and half brick sizes to suit any application and must be positioned in unobstructed daylight or direct sunlight to yield the most efficient and effective light output during the hours of darkness.

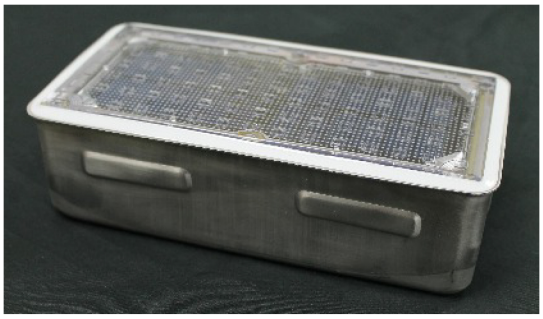

The product's super capacitor stores the sun's energy during the day and provides enough power for a working time of up to 12 hrs from full charge, lighting up automatically at dusk and switching off at dawn. The Solar LED Brick is still highly effective in the winter months, despite reduced solar capture.

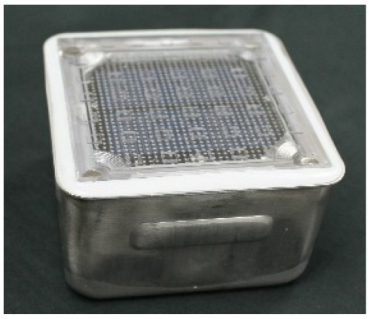

Unlike a battery, the super capacitor has an average rated life of over 20 years, eliminating the need to dig out and replace the brick in the event of a battery failure.
